

TERMS OF USE AGREEMENT

Welcome to www.aac.ca (the "Website"), owned and operated by The Alberta Student Assessment Network, operating as the Alberta Assessment Consortium ("AAC"). By accessing and using the Website, you are agreeing to comply with and be bound by this Terms of Use Agreement (the "Agreement"). Please read the following Agreement carefully. If you do not wish to be bound by these terms and conditions, you may not access or use the Website. AAC may modify this Agreement from time to time, and any such modifications shall be effective immediately upon posting of the modified Agreement on the Website. You agree to review the Agreement periodically to be aware of such modifications and your continued access or use of the site shall be deemed your conclusive acceptance of the modified Agreement.

The provisions of this Agreement restricting the unauthorized use or copying of Materials apply to all users of this Website, including members of AAC ("AAC Members") and their respective employees (including teachers), consultants, contractors, or other representatives. These terms do not replace, but are in addition to, the terms governing a Member's membership rights.

Educators who are employed by AAC Members and who are on secondment to a jurisdiction or organization that is not an AAC Member do not retain the rights afforded to AAC Members during the term of their secondment, and their access is limited to that which is available to the public. Educators who were formerly employed by AAC Members and who are no longer employed by an AAC Member do not retain the rights afforded to current AAC Members.

Electronic Communications

By accessing and using the Website or sending us e-mail, or otherwise communicating with us electronically, you are granting your explicit consent for all purposes, including for the purposes of any applicable anti-spam or comparable legislation, to allow AAC to communicate with you electronically, and any agreements formed (including, without limitation, agreements for the purchase of educational materials) by electronic communication between you and AAC will be valid in that form.

Use of AAC Materials

AAC materials accessible through the Website include:

- documents, including downloadable documents in Word, .PDF, PowerPoint or Keynote format, and text on individual web pages (the "Documentary Materials");
- video recordings that may be accessed for viewing through the Website (the "Video Materials"); and
- AAC publications that are available for purchase through the Website (the "AAC Publications").

All Documentary Materials, Video Materials and AAC Publications (collectively, "Materials") are copyrighted and protected by the Copyright Act (Canada). You expressly acknowledge and confirm that AAC Members may have access to Materials that are not available to the public (such materials being referred to herein as "AAC Member Materials"), and that no such AAC Member Materials may be copied, reproduced, distributed, republished, downloaded, displayed, posted or transmitted to anyone not an AAC Member in any form or by any means without the prior written consent of AAC or other applicable copyright holder. AAC Members may view, copy, print and use AAC Member Materials only as specified within such AAC Member Materials or otherwise on the Website, and you expressly agree that you will observe and comply with any notice or restriction on or accompanying any AAC Member Materials.

No Materials may be viewed, copied or used for any commercial application intended to generate financial profit for the user thereof, or for any organization to which such user may belong or be seconded, or by which such user may be employed (a “Commercial Use”), except as specifically provided herein.

Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, the following specific provisions shall apply:

- AAC Publications: AAC Publications may be purchased through the Website, and may not be copied, stored, reproduced, distributed, republished, downloaded or transmitted in any form or by any means.
- Video Materials: Video Materials may be played directly from the Website, but may not be copied, stored, reproduced, distributed, republished, downloaded or transmitted in any form or by any means.
- Documentary Materials:
- Documentary Materials that are AAC Member Materials: Documentary Materials that are AAC Member Materials (“AAC Member Documentary Materials”) may be viewed, printed, copied and used for classroom instruction and professional development, provided that you are responsible to ensure that any copyright notice along with any other notices and disclaimers appearing on such AAC Member Documentary Materials are reproduced and retained on all copies in the same form and manner as on the original.
- AAC Member Documentary Materials may be downloaded, copied and stored on individual computers, but may not be sent to, forwarded to or shared with any other parties who are not AAC Members, nor may AAC Member Documentary Materials be uploaded to, copied to, stored on or through, or posted to any external websites other than the Website.
- AAC Member Documentary Materials that have been downloaded, copied or stored as described in the preceding paragraph may be shared in classroom presentation or in print form with students of the AAC Member.
- AAC Member Documentary Materials may be modified for individual instructional use and professional development by individual teachers employed by an AAC Member, provided that each page or slide that has been so modified displays the following statement, along with the uniform resource locator (“URL”) linking to the original source on the Website:

Adapted from Alberta Assessment Consortium <insert url>
- AAC Members may share links to AAC Member Documentary Materials with their employees through email or other instantaneous electronic communication such as text messaging, or include such links in documents, articles and/or presentation slides, but not otherwise, and only provided that any such link provides the complete URL.

- Documentary Materials that are available to the public: Documentary Materials that are available to the general public (“Public Documentary Materials”) may not be used for a Commercial Use without the express written permission of the copyright holder.
- Public Documentary Materials may be viewed, printed, copied and used for classroom instruction, provided that you are responsible to ensure that any copyright notice along with any other notices and disclaimers appearing on such Public Documentary Materials are reproduced and retained on all copies in the same form and manner as on the original.
- In addition to the foregoing, you are responsible to ensure that any copyright notice along with any other notices and disclaimers appearing on such Public Documentary Materials are reproduced and retained on all copies in the same form and manner as on the original.
- Public Documentary Materials may be downloaded, copied and stored on individual computers, but may not be uploaded to, copied to, stored on or through, or posted to any external websites other than the Website.
- Public Documentary Materials may be modified for individual educational or professional development purposes or classroom instructional use, but not for any Commercial Use, provided that each page or slide that has been so modified displays the following statement, along with the uniform resource locator (“URL”) linking to the original source on the Website:

Adapted from Alberta Assessment Consortium <insert url>

- Public Documentary Materials may be shared through email or other instantaneous electronic communication such as text messaging, or linked to in documents, articles and/or presentation slides, but not otherwise, and only provided that any such link provides the complete URL.

AAC’s Marks

You are not permitted to use, display or promote the name, trade-mark(s), logo(s) or other distinguishing marks of AAC (apart from authorized reproduction of Materials), without the prior written consent of AAC.

Restrictions and Prohibited Uses

You agree that you will not use the Website for any improper, fraudulent, illegal or malicious purpose, including, without limitation, to impair use of the Website by others.

You agree that you will not, nor will you authorize or permit your employees (including teachers), consultants, contractors, agents, or other representatives to, copy, reproduce, download or otherwise collect Materials for the purposes of disseminating the same to persons or organizations other than AAC Members, or to use such Materials after the expiry or termination of your membership in AAC, or otherwise to make use of such Materials other than as permitted by this Agreement, and you acknowledge and agree that any such unauthorized use constitutes a breach of AAC’s copyright in such Materials.

You agree not to modify, adapt, translate, reverse engineer, decompile, disassemble or otherwise attempt to discover, alter, copy or use the source code of the Website. You also agree not to develop any similar or competing business or website that uses any portion of, or look and feel of the Website, or any of the Materials.

Where you have password-protected access to the Website as a result of being an AAC Member, you shall not disclose such password to any person not an AAC Member.

Remedies for Breach

In addition to and without limiting any remedies AAC may have at law or equity pursuant to any infringement of copyright or other breach of the terms of this Agreement, AAC may restrict or refuse access to the Website to any person or organization, including an AAC Member or employee of an AAC Member, where AAC, in its sole discretion, determines that such AAC Member or employee has breached the terms of this Agreement, or otherwise poses a risk to the integrity, reputation, or operation of the Website or of AAC.

Hyperlinks

The Website may contain links to third party websites. These links have been provided solely as a convenience for you and do not constitute an endorsement by AAC of the content of such third party sites. Where these links are for the purposes of completing transactions (for example, third party payment services for registration fees) you are subject to whatever terms are required by that third party, and AAC is not responsible for any failure by the third party to make you aware of such terms, or for your failure to be aware of such terms.

Links to the Website may also be provided from sites either known or unknown to AAC. Access to any other web site linked to or from the Website is at your own risk. AAC has not reviewed and is not responsible for the content of any third party sites linked to or from the Website and does not make any representations or warranties regarding the content or accuracy of materials on such third party websites.

Disclaimer of Warranties and Limitation of Liability

The Website and Materials are provided by AAC on an "as is" and "as available" basis. AAC makes no representations or warranties of any kind, either express or implied, as to any aspect of the information, content, materials, documents or products and services included on the Website. You expressly agree that your use of the Website and Materials is at your sole risk.

To the full extent permissible by applicable law, AAC disclaims all warranties, express or implied, including, but not limited to, implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose. AAC does not warrant that the Website, its servers, or e-mail sent from AAC or its authorized agents are free from viruses or other harmful components. AAC does not warrant that access to the Website will be continuous or will be available at any given time, nor that any content on the Website will remain available for access. AAC will not be liable for any damages of any kind arising from the use of the Website or Materials, including but not limited to direct, indirect, incidental, punitive, and consequential damages.

Approved Programs of Study

AAC strives to make the Materials compliant with approved Alberta programs of study, however, you are responsible for ensuring your educational activities, including use of the Materials, are compliant with all curricular requirements in your educational setting.

Privacy

E-mail is not a secure medium of communication. We therefore require that you do not send private or sensitive information to us by e-mail. If you have any questions about security on our Website, please contact us.

If you have access to the Member Discussion Forums, we require that you do not post personal information there; however, if you choose to do so, you are explicitly consenting to the disclosure of such information to all persons or organizations with access to the Discussion Forums

All AAC Members are listed along with the names of their respective jurisdictional representatives, and are publicly viewable on the Website.

If you use a link from the Website to another third party website or service, the privacy provisions of this Agreement are no longer in effect with respect to any personal information that may be disclosed on such third party website or service. Your activities and interaction on any other website, including websites that link to the Website, are subject to that website's own rules and policies. Please review those privacy rules and policies before proceeding.

Where you have provided credit card or other personal information for the purposes of purchasing Materials, we will not retain that information after the transaction has been completed.

Our servers may use “cookies” or collect domain names and/or IP addresses of users to measure use of the Website, administer the Website, improve content and gather broad demographic information for aggregate use. Specific sections of the Website require login and the acceptance of cookies.

Storage of Personal Information Outside of Canada

Users of the Website are herewith notified that AAC may use servers outside of Canada and information that we have collected may be stored outside of Canada and be governed by the applicable privacy laws of such other jurisdiction.

Governing Law and Jurisdiction

By accessing and using the Website, you agree that the laws of the Province of Alberta, any applicable federal laws of Canada, without regard to principles of conflict of laws, will govern this Agreement and any dispute of any kind that might arise between you and AAC or its affiliates.
